MONDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1868.

From Washington.

President Johnson is busily engaged preparing his last message which he will transmit to Congress at the commencement of its regular session in December.

Senator Pomeroy has arrived in Washington from Kansas and says so far as heard from no democrat is elected to the lower House of the Legislature, and only one to the Senate, and he by a five majority, and with the aid of a number of fraudulent votes. The indications are that if the Legislature find they have authority to impeach Senator Ross for corruption and neglect of duty, that they will make very short work of it. Senator Ross was not allowed to take any part in the canvass, and Republican speakers everywhere denounced him as a traitor, &c.

The Tribune's correspondent writes: A personal friend of Secretary McCulloch, who knows his wishes, says that under no circumstances would that gentleman remain in office longer than the 4th of March, and that his only desire is to hand over the Department to his successor in the best possible condition; so that all attacks on him with a view of preventing his continuance are entirely useless.

Speaker Colfax is to be married on Wednesday morning at the residence of his bride's mother-in-law, in Ohio. Both of the parents of Miss Wade are dead, but her father, who is a brother of Senator Wade married a second time before his death.

The Sun's correspondent says it is positively stated that Reverdy Johnson is acting under instructions given him prior to his departure for England by President Johnson. Mr. Seward is amazed by his conduct, and says that he must have been authorized by the President to pursue his course. It is rumored that the matter is likely to produce a rupture between Mr. Seward and the President.

None of the Secretaries have yet completed their annual reports. The report that Secretary Welles has finished his is not only incorrect, but he has not yet completed a single page of it. The reports of heads of bureaus, &c., from which it is made, are now being printed at the Government office.

Every paper published in Washington is putting itself in a position to be an Administration paper after March next. Only one of them sustained Congress against the President in 1866.

The Boys in Blue and other Republican associations intend to have a grand torchlight demonstration on the night of December 7—the time of the Meeting of Congress.

Montgomery Blair's paper comes out in favor of the Democratic member of the Missouri Legislature, and sustaining Senator Henderson for reelection this winter.

Secretary Seward, in conversation on Thursday, spoke in rather strong and somewhat contemptuous terms of Reverdy Johnson's course in England, calling him more than once "That foolish old man," and saying that he could not conceive what had led him into the grave blunders he had committed. He also said, in response to an inquiry, that the President had not expressed any intention of recalling him.

DEATH OF GOV. TOD.—Hon. David, Tod of Ohio, died suddenly at his residence in Youngstown, on Friday morn. He was by profession a lawyer, and won his way from absolute penury, to fortune and eminence. He was Minister to Brazil under President Polk, in which service he gained a national reputation. After returning home, he was elected Governor of Ohio by the Democratic party. In 1860 he was President of the Douglas Democratic Convention at Baltimore. When the Rebellion broke out, in 1861, he took the Union side and earnestly favored the vigorous prosecution of the war. In 1864, on the retirement of Judge Chase from the Treasury Department, that office was proffered to Gov. Tod, by President Lincoln, but declined.

Since then he has had no public place, or taken any active part in politics until the recent Presidential election, when he labored zealously for the success of Gen. Grant. Gov. Tod was 61 years of age.

GEN. GRANT IN NEW YORK.—Gen Grant, accompanied by his wife and Gen. Dent, and Col. Badeau, of his staff, arrived in New York Friday morning, and took rooms at the Metropolitan Hotel. His arrival was not generally known until late in the day. He rode out with Mr. Leland, pro-rietary of the Metropolitan, and Mr. Robert Bonner. Many individual friends and army officers paid their respects to him. In the evening the General, accompanied by Gen. Dent and Col. Badeau, attended the Olympic Theatre. The Orchestra played "Hail to the Chief," and the audience enthusiastically cheered the President elect. Gen. Grant left for West Point Saturday forenoon to visit his son, who is a Cadet at the Academy, but returns to New York to-day, to remain a week.

Editors' and Publishers' Association.

A special meeting of this association was held in the Senate Chamber of the Capitol, on Friday evening last. The meeting was called to order by the President, Hon. E. P. Walton. The following members responded to roll-call: E. B. Whiting, G. G. Benedict, A. N. Swain, Henry Clark, C. M. Stone, Luther O. Greene, Eli Ballou, Jas. K. McLean, D. M. Camp, and Hiram Atkins. In addition to these, Joseph Poland of the Newcastle, J. W. Wheelock of the Freeman, Albert Clarke of the St. Albans Messenger, E. B. Sawyer of the Newcastle, W. W. Eaton of the Seafarer, and Geo. Foggitt of the Good Templar's Advocate, were present and joined the association.

James H. Linsley, W. P. Davis, Henry A. Cutler, Geo. H. Bradford, O. S. Bliss, Rev. J. Newman, and Rev. P. Franklin Jones were proposed as members of the association, and were duly accepted.

Mr. Benedict, from the committee on job-work, presented a revised and corrected schedule of rates for job-work, which report was adopted, and the committee were directed to furnish each member of the Association with printed copies of the same.

The subject of requiring advance payment on subscriptions was generally and thoroughly discussed, resulting in the unanimous adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That this association hereby adopts the system of requiring advance payment of newspaper subscriptions, and recommends its strict enforcement on all new subscriptions on and after the 1st of January next by every member of the association.

The extremely low price paid by the State for the publication of the laws annually designated for publication, came up for debate, and the expression of the association is embodied in the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the price hitherto paid by the State for publishing the laws designated for publication in the newspapers, is pitifully inadequate, and that the President of this Association be and is hereby appointed a committee to consult with the State Auditor of accounts, and draft a bill, and cause the same to be presented to the Legislature, which shall at least pay for the cost of publication.

No other business of importance presenting itself, the meeting adjourned sine die.

E. P. WALTON,
President.
D. M. CAMP,
Sec. Secretary.

GEN. W. F. SMITH.—This gentleman has telegraphed to the Captain General of Cuba, that there is no truth in the rumor that he is in any way connected with the filibustering expedition, said to be fitting out for that island. The Captain General, in his reply, begs him to assist, as far as possible, in discouraging such an unlawful enterprise.

Rossini, the great Italian musical composer, died in Paris on the 14th, in the 77th year of his age.

ILLINOIS ELECTION.—Returns from ninety-nine counties show the proposition for a constitution in Illinois is defeated.

Farragut and Grant.

"Burleigh," the New York correspondent of the Boston Journal relates the following:

The arrival of Admiral Farragut in our waters just in season to witness the new honor America has conferred on the great chieftain, presents a marked contrast between the present and first knowledge Admiral Farragut had of Gen. Grant as an officer. Admiral Farragut was at New Orleans with his fleet. The British and French Consuls called on him for permission to go up the river. They wanted, of course, to communicate with the rebels. Those officials promised the Admiral that they would communicate nothing they saw at New Orleans in connection with the Federal force. The Admiral not only gave them permission to do so, but to tell everything they saw. "Tell the Rebels," said the Admiral, "that I am coming through as soon as the General at the other end is ready for me." The officials returned in about two weeks. They were very mysterious for a while—pretending to have great things to communicate—did not know whether it would be a breach of confidence to tell the Admiral or not. He informed them that he did not care anything about their information, that he knew quite as much about the state of affairs as they did. But they assured him that it was all up with the Federal Government; that they had testimony in their hands to show the rebels would be successful. The British Consul, whose sympathy with the rebel cause was undisguised, presented to the Admiral a paper which he had obtained within the rebel lines, the chief item of which announced the commander of the Federal forces, whose name was said to be Grant. It was a new name to Farragut. He was anxious to know something about the gentleman with whom he was to meet so important a part. He put the Consul under a cross examination. He learned that the new commander was a plain, quiet, unpretending man—dressed like a teamster—silent as William of Orange—sawed like a locomotive—(other didn't know anything; we wouldn't tell)—round nights looking after everything with his own eye—never raising his voice above a low tone—in a marvelous way making everybody obedient to his will—evidently dogged and obstinate, and exceedingly opinionated. At the close of the interview Admiral Farragut said: "From your description of Gen Grant I think he will do," and he did. Times have changed some since then, and it is probable that these two officers will be more intimate in the four years to come.

IMPRESSIONS.—The remains of Col. Henry Pope, recently assassinated in Louisiana, were interred at Peoria, Ill. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. H. H. Northrop, a Baptist clergyman, from Psalms 23:4. "Yea, though I walk through the valley and shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." In the course of his sermon he laid his hand on the coffin, and raising his right hand said: "Let us swear fealty to the cause for which he was murdered," and all the congregation, raising their right hands, accepted that obligation.

Thomas H. Benton and a Washington Bookseller.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial tells this story of Hon. Thomas H. Benton:

Shillington is an Irish bookseller here, of credit and renown. Benton was a neighbor and friend of his, and made Shillington cut out of books and newspapers every conceivable article upon the Pacific Railway and bring it to him. He also employed Shillington to select from the Congressional Globes, which were brought to his house in C Street by the cartload, the matter that he wished in publishing his "Abridgement of the Debates of Congress."

"It was a strange and remarkable study," said Shillington, "to see that old man lying there flat on his back, unable to rise, his spectacles poised on the tip of his nose, looking through the long debates, whose huge folios he held on his breast. He knew that he had but a week or two to live, and he was turning a race with death to get the book finished; for he believed that it was the last thing to keep the country to itself. He used to send me word four or five times a day to come up there, and the people said that I was his slave. If I did not come promptly on time, the old gentleman seemed to feel that I was in some way derelict in my duty to the country."

One day, when the shop was full of people, word came down, "Mr. Benton wants you to come at two o'clock, to help him on an important matter."

As soon as I could possibly leave, I went around to his dwelling and found him asleep, breathing very hard, with a large volume of the Globe on his breast. I lifted the book off and set it on a table a little out of his reach. Then, seeing that he did not stir, I hastened back to my work.

In about two hours I returned, and the old man looked very severely at me. "I sent for you, sir, two hours ago. I have but a month at most to live, sir, and it is important for the country that this book shall be finished before I die. You did not come, sir."

"Yes, Mr. Benton, I did, and I found you asleep."

"I have not slept for fifty hours, sir; it was impossible that I could sleep with so much on my mind."

Mr. Benton never trusted a man that told him a lie, so I found it necessary to clear my self.

"Mr. Benton," said I, "you were asleep with a volume of the Globe on your breast when I came out the room, and I found you breathing hard, so I put the book on the table yonder."

The old man's eyes lighted up. "Well now, sir," he said, "I knew I had that book on my breast or on the bed somewhere, and I wondered how I got there so far. Perhaps I did doze a little unconsciously. But come, sir, we must to work. I have but a little time to do a great deal of work in."

"Dr. Hall and his colleague, to prolong the life of Benton, opened the old man's abdomen and, taking out his bowels while he was still-conscious, proceeded to cleanse them. At one place they found grape skins; then they found bits of wood, which he used to chew abstractedly while writing or reading."

"Look on, gentlemen," said the old man, feebly; "I dare say you will find Congressional Globes next."

"When Benton was about to die, so vital did he think his advice was to the country, he sent for Buchanan, had the door closed, and solemnly devoted his last hours to impressing upon the President his opinion of the mode in which the country should be administered. If ever there was a man," concluded Shillington, "who thought that in his mind and reason lay the true destiny of the Union, it was Tom Benton. His family, his fame, is future were all subordinate to his love of country."

DR. WISTAR'S

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

In the whole history of medical discoveries no REMEDY has performed so many or such remarkable cures of the numerous affections of the THROAT, LUNGS and CHEST, as this long-tried and justly celebrated Balm. So generally acknowledged is the superior excellence of this remedy that but few of the many who have tested its virtues by experience fail to keep it at hand as a speedy and certain cure for sudden attacks of cold—fully believing that its remedial powers are comprehensive enough to embrace every form of disease, from the slightest cold to the most dangerous symptoms of pulmonary complaint.

Unsolicited Testimony.

From REV. FRANCIS LOBBELL, Pastor of the South Congregational Church, Bridgeport, Connecticut.

"I consider it a duty which I owe to suffering humanity to bear testimony to the virtues of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I have used it when I have had occasion for any remedy for coughs, colds or sore throat for many years, and in every instance has it proved to be a remedy and cure me. I have frequently been very hoarse on Saturday, and looked forward to the delivery of two sermons on the following day with sad misgivings, but by a liberal use of the Balsam my hoarseness has invariably been removed, and I have preached without difficulty. I commend it to my brethren in the ministry, and to public speakers generally, as a certain remedy for the bronchial troubles to which we are necessarily exposed."

WOMAN.

FEMALES. OWING TO THE PECULIAR and important relations which they sustain, their peculiar organization, and the offices they perform, are subject to many sufferings. From those who contribute in no small degree to their happiness and welfare, for none can be happy who are ill. Not only so, but no one of these various female complaints can long be suffered to run on without involving the general health of the individual, and even producing permanent sickness, and from obvious decline. Nor is it pleasant to consult a physician for the relief of these various delicate affections, and only upon the most urgent necessity will a true woman so far sacrifice her greatest charm as to consult a doctor. The sex will then thank us for placing in their hands simple specifics which will be found efficacious in relieving and curing almost every one of those troublesome complaints peculiar to the sex.

HELMHOLD'S EXTRACT OF BECHT.—Hundreds suffer on in silence, and hundreds of others apply vainly to druggists and doctors, who either merely palliate them with the hope of a cure or apply remedies which make them worse. I would not wish to assert anything that would do it justice to the skillful, but I am obliged to say that, although it may be produced from excessive exhaustion of the powers of life, by laborious employment, unwholesome air and food, profuse menstruation, the use of tea and coffee, and frequent childbirth, it is far oftener caused by direct irritation, applied to the mucous membrane of the vagina itself.

When reviewing the causes of these distressing complaints, it is most painful to contemplate the attendant evils consequent upon them. It is but simple justice to the subject to enumerate a few of the many additional causes which so largely affect the life, health, and happiness of woman in all classes of society, and which, consequently, affect more or less directly, the welfare of the entire human family. The mania that exists for procreancy, education, and marriage, causes the years that nature designed for corporeal development to be wasted and perverted in the restraints of dress, the early commencement of school, and especially in the unhealthy excitement of the ballroom, with the body half-clothed, and the mind unduly excited by pleasure, perverting in midnight revels the hours designed by nature for sleep and rest, the work of destruction is half accomplished.

In consequence of this early strain upon her system, unnecessary effort is required by the delicate victim to retain her situation in school at a later day, thus aggravating the evil. When once excitement is over, another in prospective keeps the mind morbidly sensitive to impressions, while the now constant restraint of fashionable dress, absolutely forbidding the exercise indispensable to the attainment and retention of organic health and strength; the exposure to night air; the sudden change of temperature; the complete prostration produced by excessive dancing, must, of necessity, produce their legitimate effect. At last, an early marriage caps the climax of misery, and the unfortunate one, hitherto regardless of the plain dictates and restraints of her delicate nature, becomes an unwilling subject of medical treatment. This is but a truthful picture of the experience of thousands of our young women.

Long before the ability to exercise the functions of the generative organs, they require an education of their peculiar nervous system, composed of what is called the tissue, which is, in common with the female breast and lips, evidently under the control of mental emotions and associations of an early period of life; and as we shall subsequently see, those emotions, which, excessive lead, long before puberty, to habits which sap the very life of their victims are nature has self-completed their development.

For Female Weakness and Debility, Whites or Leucorrhoea, Too Profuse Menstruation, Exhaustion, Too Long Continued Periods, for Protractions and Bearing Down, or Protrusions Uteri, we offer the most perfect specific known: HELMHOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF BECHT. Directions for use, diet, and advice, accompany.

Females in every period of life, from infancy to extreme old age, will find it a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. Strength is the glory of manhood and womanhood. HELMHOLD'S EXTRACT BECHT is more strength than any other cure of the female system. It is of iron, infinitely safe, and more pleasant. HELMHOLD'S EXTRACT BECHT, having received the endorsement of the most prominent physicians in the United States, is now offered to afflicted humanity as a certain cure of the female system. Diseases and symptoms, from whatever cause originating: General Debility, Mental and Physical Depression, Imbecility, Determination of Blood to the Head, Confused Ideas, Hysteria, General Irritability, Restlessness and Sleeplessness at Night, Absence of Muscular Efficiency, Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, Low Spirits, Disorganization or Paralysis of the Organs of Generation, Palpitation of the Heart, and, in fact, all the concomitants of a Nervous and Debilitated state of the system. To insure a genuine cure, cut this out. Ask for HELMHOLD'S. Take no other. Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Price $1.25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. E. S. GOODWIN, Esq., Agent Welden Spring Water.

DEAR SIR: I write to acknowledge the bene- fit I have received from the Welden Spring Water. I have been troubled with Disease of the Kidneys for many years. I have consulted some of the best physicians in the country and received no relief. Some few months since I was recommended to try the Welden Spring Water. I had not taken it long before I was surprised to see how much good it had done me. Since then I always keep it in my room and sell some drink any other water, knowing eventually it will cure me. As I am anxious that others should be benefited by my experience, I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering with the same disease. Respectfully,

E. S. GOODWIN.

DEAR SIR: I cheerfully comply with your request to give my candid opinion of the merit of the Welden Spring Water. For some years I have suffered much from Dyspepsia, and have exhausted many patent medicines, and the prescriptions of many physicians, I was advised to try the Welden Spring Water. I found by taking a glass of the water before meals it acts as a tonic and general regulator of the system, and enables me to eat any kind of food without inconvenience. The only evidence I can give in appreciation of its virtues is a recommendation to every one suffering from Dyspepsia to try it.

Yours truly, FRANK B. DIXON.
